

Client
Source
Date

High Timber
Evening Standard
23 July 2009

The smelly cheese in a box of its own

A CITY restaurant has been forced to keep the latest addition to its cheese board under lock and key to protect diners from its overwhelmingly pungent odour. Staff at the High Timber restaurant on the Thames have taken to placing the Vieux Boulogne cheese – widely acknowledged as the smelliest in the world – in a “special box”.